But Havnor is also the Great Isle, a broad, rich land; and in the villages inland from the port, When he was on Orrimy, Medra had learned to read the common writing of the Archipelago. Later, Highdrake of Pendor had taught him some of the runes of power. That was known lore. What Ember had learned alone in the Immanent Grove was not known to any but those with whom she shared her knowledge. She lived all summer under the eaves of the Grove, having no more than a box to keep the mice and wood rats from her small store of food, a shelter of branches, and a cook fire near a stream that came out of the woods to join the little river running down to the bay, Medra camped nearby. He did not know what Ember wanted of him; he hoped she meant to teach him, to begin to answer his questions about the Grove. But she said nothing, and he was shy and cautious, fearing to intrude on her solitude, which daunted him as did the strangeness of the Grove itself. The second day he was there, she told him to come with her and led him very far into the wood. They walked for hours in silence. In the summer midday the woods were silent. No bird sang. The leaves did not stir. The aisles of the trees were endlessly different and all the same. He did not know when they turned back, but he knew they had walked farther than the shores of Roke. Hand had already stretched out to other islands all around the Inmost Sea. As the Women of the teacher had spoken of once only and long ago. Strange matters, so strange he had never known if the bed. She was Anieb. never practiced it, but he could see that the young fellow had the gift. He would do well to learn. Otter's will. Nor did Otter himself. Later when he tried to repeat the word, he stood dumb. mites, told himself to remember to clean out the nest box as soon as the chicks hatched, and went. It was hard work out in the pastures. "Who doesn't do hard work?" Emer had asked, showing her. The food of dragons is said to be light, or fire; they kill in rage, to defend their young, or for sport, but never eat their kill. Since time immemorial, until the reign of Heru, they had used only the outmost isles of the West Reach-which may have been the easternmost borders of their own realm-for meeting and breeding, and had seldom even been seen by most of the islanders. Naturally irritable and arrogant, the dragons may have felt threatened by the increasing population and prosperity of the Inner Lands, which brought constant boat traffic even out in the West Reach. For whatever the reason, in those years they made increasing raids, sudden and random, on flocks and herds and villagers of the lonely western isles. "Oh, pretty man," said one of them with a smile, "don't even show us what you have in your pack. crowned king. He had seen men beat their sons. Once, when they had gone a long way and the trees, dark evergreens she did not know, stood very high about them, she heard a call - a horn blowing, a cry? - remote, on the very edge of hearing. She stood still, listening towards the west. The mage walked on, turning only when he realized she had stopped. After Morred, seven more kings and queens ruled from Enlad, and the realm increased steadily in size and prosperity. "But," said Dragonfly and stopped, caught by the argument. After a while she said, "So a name has to be a gift?" squirrel scolded, far up in the oak, and a jay replied. Hound scratched his neck and sighed. smithy. As soon as Rose got there, Diamond said, "He wants me to go study with Master Hemlock! to other men than women and children are. We might have fifty witches here and they'll pay little." "Once in his lifetime, if he's lucky, a wizard finds somebody he can talk to." Nemmerle had said that to Dulse a night or two before he left Roke, a year or two before Nemmerle was chosen Archmage. He had been the Master Patterner and the kindest of all Dulse's teachers at the School. Banners still flew from the towers of the City of Havnor, and a king still ruled there; the banners were those of captured towns and isles, and the king was the warlord Losen. Losen never left the marble palace where he sat all day, served by slaves, seeing the shadow of the sword of Erreth-Akbe slip like the shadow of a great sundial across the roofs below. He gave orders, and the slaves said, "It is done, your majesty." He held audiences, and old men came and said, "We obey, your majesty." He summoned his wizards, and the mage Early came, bowing low. "Make me walk!" Losen shouted, beating his paralyzed legs with his weak hands..Early waved his hand.
